Free Font License Agreement

Thank you for licensing type from Justin Penner, and for supporting independent type designers.

By downloading or using this font, you are giving your legally-binding consent to the following license agreement.

Definitions

First, we have to define some terms, to ensure we're all on the same page.

- “Font Design” is the shapes or outlines of the letters, numbers and other glyphs in the font, together with the designed system for setting and spacing the type.
- “Font Software” is the source code and the compiled code that contains the Font Design. The source code is proprietary, and only the compiled code will be supplied to the Licensee.
- “Font” is both the Font Design and Font Software
- “Vendor” is Justin Penner.
- “Licensee” is the person or organization purchasing or receiving this font license from the Vendor.
- “You” and “your” are considered synonymous to the Licensee, for the purposes of this agreement.
- “User” is a person, within the Licensee’s organization, to whom a Free license is assigned.
- “Free”, in this agreement, refers solely to the cost of the font license. The Font is not free as in freedom. It is not libre or open-source.

Assertion of Moral & Legal Rights

The Vendor reserves all rights to use, copy and distribute this Font Software and Font Design, except where permissions are explicitly granted to the Licensee in this contract.

These rights are asserted by the Vendor on moral grounds, and are legally protected around the world by international and regional intellectual property laws.

License is Not Ownership

Licensing this font software does not equate to ownership in any regard. The Licensee holds a license to use the Font Software and Font Design, but does not in any sense “own” it.

Non-transferable

Licenses are non-transferable. You may not sell, transfer or give your license to any other person or organization. However, you may re-assign Users within your organization in accordance with the Assigning Users section below.

Assigning Users

You may assign and re-assign licensed Users within your organization, as long as the total number of Users in a given calendar month does not exceed the total number of Users allotted in your license.

User Installations

The Licensee and assigned Users may install the Font Software on any devices for the sole use of the assigned Users.

Printing & Physical Goods

You may use the Font Software to design and produce printed publications or physical goods (except Alphabet Products—see below), so long as the Font Software is not included in the end product in any way.

Embedding in Documents

Embedding subsets of the Font Software in a digital document (i.e. a PDF file) is allowed, as long as the document itself is not a product for sale (like an e-Book).

Usage in Digital Images

You may use the Font Software to create any digital images such as logos, artwork and graphics, but the images you distribute must not contain any parts of the Font Software. In practice, this means live text must be converted to outlines or rasterized by your design software.

Embedding in Websites

Embedding the Font Software in a website is allowed by this license.

Embedding in e-Books

Embedding the Font Software in an e-Books, e-Magazines and other e-Publications is allowed by this license.

Embedding in Apps

Embedding the Font Software in software applications is allowed by this license.

However, you may not use the Font Software as part of a list of user-selectable fonts in an application. This includes, but is not limited to, applications for graphic design, social media image designs, and customizing lettering to be applied to physical products.

No Alphabet or Type Setting Products

You may not produce any physical or digital products or applications that consist of one or more individual glyphs, including applications that allow the letters and glyphs to be set in sequences. This includes, but is not limited to: house numbers, stamp sets, rub-on letters, alphabet toys, adhesive alphabet letters, alphabet punch and die sets, and any electronic applications that allow the setting of type.

Sharing & distribution

You may share or distribute the Font Software with anyone, and you may post or upload it to any publicly accessible server or website. The Font Software must be shared and distributed in its original .zip file, containing the Font Software and this License Agreement.

Service Bureaus & Print Vendors

If your service bureau or print vendor requires packaged source files including the Font Software, you may provide it to them, but they must agree to this License.

Modifications & Derivatives

You may modify the Font Software for your own licensed use. You may only distribute the modified Font Software to other licensed Users within your organization, and use it with the same limitations that apply to the non-modified Font Software. If free technical support is offered to Licensees, it will not be offered to Licensees who have modified the Font Software.

Modified Font Software must preserve the name, author and copyright information, stored in the metadata inside the font file, and the font name must also be preserved in the filename.

If any glyphs are modified or added, the word “Modified” must be added to the filename.

You may also contact the Vendor if you would like to commission changes or add additional characters to the Font Software.

Backup Copies

You are entitled to make backup copies of the Font Software, for use solely within your household or organization.

Credit

You are not obligated to credit the author of the font (Justin Penner), but I would love it if you did.

You are also not obligated to send me any work you create using the font, but I would be thrilled to see it!

Termination

Vendor reserves the right to terminate the license if any terms are broken.

Disclaimer & Warranty

The Vendor offers no warranties for the Software and accepts no liability for any issues, harm or damage that may result from the use of it, except when required by law. In any case where the Vendor offers a warranty or accepts liability, the maximum damages will be equal to the original purchase price paid by the Licensee.
